

HIGH LINER IS HOME.

Sch. Saladin Makes a Magnificent Stock South.

NETTERS ARE DOING WELL.

Sch. Natalie B. Nickerson Rolls Up a Fine Stock.

The gasoline auxiliary schooner Saladin, Capt. Flar McKown, arrived home from her southern seining season during the night, to refit and repair her crank shaft.

The Saladin is, up to the present time, high line of the seining fleet without any doubt or question.

On her southern seining trip she has made the magnificent stock of $11,937, the crew getting the fine share of $239.86. The net stock was $10,061.50.

This is probably the largest stock ever made by any vessel on her spring southern seining trip.

Capt. Flar McKown, who commands the Saladin, is too well known to need any introduction to the fishing interest. He has always been one of the leaders of the seining fleet and is known among the seining fleet as a skipper of splendid judgment and tireless energy. His magnificent showing this spring is a tribute to his hard work and ability. The Saladin is owned by Cunningham & Thompson.

They claim to be high line thus far of the seining fleet with a gross stock of $11,868.69 and a share of $220.55. But as will be seen by the above paragraph, the high line honor is held by the Saladin.

Pollock School.

The waters along the back of Cape Cod last Sunday afternoon were alive with pollock. It was an easy matter to stand in the edge of the water and throw out pollock with pitchforks. Over 200 were captured in this way by the life-saving men at Highland Station and by the lightkeepers. Had a few men with a boat and small sweep seine been on hand it would have been a simple matter to have landed a thousand barrels, in fact there seemed to be no limit to the supply. If this isn't a fish year, what is it?
